B O P P I N '

Yeet and Boik are popular arcade characters that live in a product universe of their own creation, "Arcapaedia." Here they are often visited by other creatures from other alien games. One day Yeet noticed that all monsters from the games were gone. "What, no monsters? That's crazy!"

All the monsters and villains from all the games have been stolen!

S w e e t y Hunnybunz, the singing treacle bear, has imprisoned them.

That nauseatingly self-righteous little priest has decided to 'clean up' the multiverse of games. He's too pure and sweet even for our local heroes. This is terrible; with no evil monsters to fight, there's no one to save.

It's up to Yeet and Boik to free the imprisoned monsters. Boppin' a trail through the Hunnybunz realm and defeating the Hunnybunz clan is the only way to free the monsters and restore the balance between good and evil.

A NOTE FROM APOGEE

This game is an intellectual product of Accursed Toys, and the developers who work for that company. There are images within this game that do not reflect the judgement and game design philosophy of Apogee, namely the Accursed Toys bloody teddy bear logo, and the suicide animations of the two main characters. We apologize if you find these images offensive and out of place for a puzzle game.

THE ACCURSED TOYS MANIFESTO:

We recognize that over 60% of all computer and cartridge game players are well over the age of 25. It is to this large, and more sophisticated audience that we dedicated our art.

'Adult games for adult minds' is our second motto, after 'Determined to disturb.' We know that art is powerless unless it both thrills and upsets. And we do see our work as art. We will ever endure to do both in an intellectually exciting and unsettling manner.

We shall make it our duty to create complete and powerful works, that have both playability and artistic integrity, we hope to please and shock, pleasure and surprise you.

BOPPIN'

INSTRUCTIONS

Yeet's and Boik's task is simple, but ask yourself—do I have the hand-eye skill to master Boppin'? It's easy—Boppin' only involves a few basic moves:

- Walk over sources to pick up boppin' blocks.

- Elevators are called by holding down the spacebar or the joystick button, and pressing the arrow keys or moving the joystick left or right in the direction of the shaft. To ride the elevators, press the arrow keys or move the joystick up or down.

- To push moveable boppin' blocks, hold down the spacebar or the joystick button and use either the arrow keys or the joystick to move the block in a direction. Try pushing blocks into strategic places in order to create bop patterns.

- Push blocks to "catch" fallen blocks.

- To aim the boppin' blocks, hold down the spacebar or the joystick button and use the arrow keys or joystick to choose the direction. Fire by releasing the spacebar or the button, while keeping the direction. When thrown, blocks will fly diagonally.

- Refractors alter a boppin' block's flight pattern. While blocks normally fly diagonally, the refractor causes them to fly horizontally or vertically. This can be very helpful in solving many puzzles.

- Press or pull down on the "source" to exchange boppin' blocks. Also, if a block gets trapped between two refractors, pressing or pulling down on the source will cause the block to explode. Doing this will cost you points.

HINTS

Besides the basic knowledge of how to play the game, there are a few hints that will make your boppin' experience a more enjoyable one:

Boppin' Patterns

- When two similar blocks strike, blocks are cleared.
- When two different blocks strike, you lose!!
- Refractors are tiles that change the direction of a thrown block from a diagonal movement to a straight line.
- Pushing blocks is often the key to completing a puzzle.
- When a thrown block completes a boppin' pattern, a monster is freed.
- The more points you have, the easier the final battles with bosses are.
